ABOUT US

The Indiana Partnership for Young Writers, a program of the Butler University College of Education, provides ongoing and in-depth professional development in the teaching of reading, writing and math to teachers in grades K-8. The Partnership is committed to inquiry-based workshop teaching that sustains students' lifelong academic and workplace success.

"Why should I read?" students ask.

"I already read that book..."

"I don't get it..."

"That has nothing to do with my life..." they say.

Teacher-consultant Kelly Gallagher helps us understand how to avoid and actually reverse "readicide," the unintentional systematic killing of students' love for reading that plagues our schools.

With ready-to-use mini-lessons and a wide range of small group and whole group activities, Kelly will support us in teaching students not only to comprehend difficult texts but also to develop the skills and behaviors of lifelong readers.

Teachers will leave the workshop with practical ideas to:

- Motivate students to read a broad range of challenging texts
- Teach students to self-monitor their comprehension and "fix it" when it falters
- Ignite the desire to revisit texts and gain a deeper level of understanding about them

This workshop is specifically geared towards classroom and English/Language Arts teachers in grades 4-8. Educators in other disciplines and grade levels are also welcome and will find the featured strategies adaptable and scalable to meet many needs.
