

What I feel about this particular item is that I feel is disgust. The twig is dead and lifeless the flowers are dead and the leaves are dead. The twig was supposed to be something better because big things have small beginnings. The world has turned its back on this twig and now is completely gone. This twig makes me feel like when all twigs if one is torn out of 5 will cause the same example of the world. The death reminds me of the future, but when I die will there be grief or relief. The main thing that I now feel is realization that shows that something from a delicate twig can be compared to the real world. We have all been waiting for the bloom, but sometimes you have to wait to be something great.

What I feel about this particular item is disgust
The twig

was supposed to be something greater
this twig makes me feel like where all twigs,

If one of us
is torn

10 out of 5 will care. the thing that I feel is realization that shows that something from a delicate twig can be compared to the real world

TWIG

What I feel
Is disgust
and hatred.

The world has turned It's back on it.

This creation was Supposed to be Something greater.

What I feel is realization
That shows Something from A small twig
Can be compared to The world today
